I. An Account of ſome Roman, French, and Iriſh Inſcriptions and Antiquities, lately found in Scotland and Ireland, by Mr Edw. Lluyd, Communicated to the Publiſher from Mr John Hicks, of Trewithier in Cornwall, by Dr Will. Muſgrave, F. C. P. & R. S.

1 A Roman Inſcription from Hadrian's Wall by the Kerk of Kil patric. Imperatori Cæſari Tito Ælio Hadriano Antonino, Auguſto, Pio, patri patriæ, vexillatio legionis ſextæ victricis p. foſſam per ter mille & DCLVI paſſus.

2. An Iriſh Inſcription on a ſtately Croſs, carv'd on all ſides. 'Tis at Munſter Boys, near Drogheda.

The two Cats and the Inſcription we know not what to make of.

3. Another at the Abbey of Cluinmacnos in the County of Roſcommon. { Or Angilla Giarain. / Pray for the ſake of Giarain.

4. A Pictiſh Monument near Edinburgh, In oc tumulo jacit veta F victi. This the common people call the Ket ſtean note, that the Brittiſh names beginning with the letters Gw, began in Latin with v, as we find by Gwytheyrn, Gwytheuir and Gwythelin; whom Latin Writers call Vortigernus, Vortimarus and Vitellinus. So I ſuppoſe this perſons name was Gweth (or Geth) of which name were divers Kings of the Picts; whence the vulgar name of Ket-ſtone.

5. A Monument of Kadran Prince of North Wales, about the midſt of the ſixth Century. Catamanus Rex ſapientiſſimus opinatiſſimus omnium Regum. This is above the Church door of Lhan Gudwaladr in Angleſey, and is a confirmation of the Authority of Geofrey of Monmouth, who makes Prince Caduan the Grandfather of our laſt King Cadwaladr.

6. A French Inſcription at Bullifont Abbey in Ireland. Phelip de la Chapele Ghyt ici, Deu de ſa alma eyit mercipte.

7 & 8. Two Iriſh Inſcriptions on the Tombs of Scottiſh Princes at Y Columb Kil in the Hebrides. The 1ſt ſignifies, Pray for Eogain (or Eugenius) the 2d, Pray for Ilfata.

9. An Arrows ſtead of Flint, commonly call'd Elf-Arrow throughout Ireland and Scotland, where they are fully perſwaded the Elves often ſhoot them at Men and Beaſts. This is ſet in Silver, and worn about the Neck, as an Amulet, againſt being Elf-ſhot.
